Pages, Jan. 11.-The draft of the american plan for a league of nations as approved by the American Com mission has been finished, even in small details, and is the most complete that has been prepared so far having been strengthened considerably since the last conference, and will be presented to the preliminary conference by President Wilson.

The President has not yet accepted the final draft, but his approval is expected. He is likely to yield to the pressure applied by Col. E. M. House and other members of the mission, who contend that the plan should e published upon its presentation to erences in opinion.

The evidence of pronounced Republican hostility to certain features of the President's policy undoubtedly has had great weight in determining the attitude of Americans on the controversial features of the plan. In the opinion of many nere the President made a great technical blunder in waiting so long in drawing up and presenting the plan for discussion. This adds to the mysany which is still unsolved. It is specied that this may be a plan to bring out the differences of the Allies over the vital Bolshevik problem. Evidence that the fourteen points have produced a strange ferment throughout the world is afforded here almost daily in the arrival of repre sentatives from races whose identity has all but disappeared from the map. The lost tribes have appeared again, hopes long buried have been disinterred, aspirations long forgotten have been refurbished and brought here to be placed on President Wilson's doorstep.
